Beginning with October Term 2010, the audio recordings of all oral arguments heard by the Supreme Court of the United States will be available free to the public on the Court's Web site, www.supremecourt.gov, at the end of each argument week. The audio recordings will be posted on Fridays after Conference.

The public may either download the audio files or listen to the recordings on the Court's Web site. The MP3 files of the audio recordings may be accessed by clicking on the "Oral Arguments" prompt on the home page, and selecting "Argument Audio." The audio recordings will be listed by case name, docket number, and the date of oral argument. The recordings will also be accessible by clicking on "What's New" on the site's home page.

The Court began audio recording oral arguments in 1955. The recordings are maintained at The National Archives and Records Administration. Prior to the 2010 Term, the recordings from one Term of Court were not available until the beginning of the next Term. The Archives will continue to serve as the official repository for the Court's audio recordings.
